Gay Prague – the best gay hotels, bars,
clubs & more

Of the central and eastern European countries, the Czech Republic is one of the most LGBTQ-friendly. Its capital city has a well-established gay-scene with bars, clubs, and cafes, most of which are located in the neighborhood of Vinohrady. Overall, local society is relatively tolerant to the LGBTQ community. Since 2011, Prague has celebrated Pride every summer in mid-August attracting hundreds of thousands to the weeklong festivities. Prague is a popular travel destination and has been for decades. A visit to this beautifully-preserved medieval city, would not be complete without exploring the picturesque Old Town with cobblestone streets and charming architecture, the world's largest castle complex overlooking the Vltava, and world-renowned museums.

General Tips

Although Prague is stunning year round, the best time to visit is in the spring (April and May) and early fall (September and October). This is when you'll encounter less crowds and milder weather in contrast to the summer peak season when hotel rates increase along with the number of tourists. Average daytime highs from June through August are in the low to mid 70s. Christmastime is another wonderful time to visit when holiday markets and decorations take over the historic squares. However, beware that winters are cold and snowy with highs only in the mid 30s. No matter the season, we recommend accommodations in or near the city center keeping you walking distance to the Old Town, Wenceslass Square, and the popular Vinohrady gay neighborhood.

Transportation & Airport Transfer

All international flights go through Prague's Vaclav Havel Airport which is located 10.5 miles (17km) west of the city center. There are several transportation options when it comes to traveling from the airport to the heart of the city. Taxis are not recommended as they can be expensive and sometimes unreliable.

For about the same price or even less, you can book a private pickup like Welcome Pickups for the best of comfort and convenience. When you arrive, a private driver will be waiting for you and will adjust the pickup time if your flight is delayed. Without traffic, it's 25 minutes to the center, but during rush hours it can take over an hour.

If you're a fan of Uber, you'll be happy to know this reliable service is popular in Prague, even more than regular taxis. From the airport you can order an UberX and cars are usually waiting within five minutes of the airport. For a more cost effective yet still convenient option, an airport shuttle transfer will take you from the airport directly to your hotel. This is actually a comfortable 8-passenger van and the ride takes anywhere from 30-60 minutes depending on traffic and the number of stops.

The most economical option is by public transit. From the bus station in front of Terminal 2 (Exit D) take the bus 119 to Nadrazi Veleslavin where you'll need to transfer to subway line A (green) to continue to a downtown station. For a little more convenience, consider the Airport Express which is a bus that will take you to the Prague Main Station (Praha Hlavni Nadrazi) eliminating the need to transfer to the subway. The entire bus trip is about 50 minutes.
